SOLAR COOKERS INTERNATIONAL BRINGS URGENT SOLUTION TO UNITED NATIONS CLIMATE CONFERENCE COP27

Sacramento, CA (October 19, 2022) -- Experts from Solar Cookers International (SCI) will urge governments, NGOs, investors, and scientists to recognize solar cooking as a powerful solution in global efforts to mitigate greenhouse gas emissions. SCI will champion solar cooking solutions at the upcoming Conference of Parties to the United Nations Convention on Climate Change (Sharm El Sheikh, Egypt, 6 November-18 November 2022).

“Climate change is an urgent issue. The time for action is now. Solar cooking is an ideal solution to both mitigate and adapt to climate change,” said Caitlyn Hughes, SCI’s Executive Director.

Solar Cookers International is the non-profit leading the solar cooking sector since 1987. SCI works to improve human health, economic well-being, women’s empowerment, and the environment by promoting climate-friendly solar cooking for vulnerable populations worldwide. Through advocacy, research, and building capacity, with collaborators in over 135 countries, SCI has proven to be the world’s leading advocate and resource for solar cooking solutions.

SCI Exhibit Booth

- Monday - Wednesday, 7-9 Nov. located at Booth #16 at the Sharm El-Sheikh International Convention Center (SHICC), also called the “Blue Zone.”

SCI is urging governments to use solar cooking in their NDCs (Nationally Determined Contributions) and VNRs (Voluntary National Reviews) as part of their climate policymaking, monitoring, and reporting activities.

The simplest solar cooker can save a family from burning one tonne of wood in a year, and with approximately 3 billion people worldwide cooking over open fires, solar thermal cooking is a powerful and appropriate solution.
